

Victoria Banks was named 2010 Female Artist of the Year and Songwriter of the Year by the Canadian Country Music Association (CCMA). Her debut CD When You Can Fly made her the most nominated female artist of 2009 with CCMA nods for Female Artist, Rising Star, Songwriter, Album, Single and Producer of the Year. She has toured with superstars from Reba to Randy Travis, has been labeled “one of the best songwriters in the business” by Music Row Magazine, and her Jessica Simpson singles “Come on Over” and “Remember That” were respectively the highest new artist debut in Billboard history and the #1 most downloaded song on iTunes. She penned the ASCAP and SOCAN award-winning Sara Evans hit “Saints & Angels”, Johnny Reid’s CCMA Song of the Year “Dance With Me,” One More Girl’s BCCMA song of the year “When it Ain’t Rainin’,” and the chart-topping “I’m Gonna Make You Love Me” for Doc Walker. Raised in Muskoka, Ontario, Canada, Victoria now lives in Nashville where she continues to write for other artists as a staff songwriter at BMG Chrysalis Music. Her sophomore CD “Never Be the Same” was released in April 2011 on the OnRamp/EMI Canada label.
